HISTORICAL BACKGROUND:

"Dissenters" are Christians who do not accept some of the tenets of the Church of England and who are reluctant to attend its services and take part in its sacraments. "Dissenters" are sometimes called "Protestant Dissenters" since there were some "Catholic Dissenters", but neither Catholics nor Quakers were regularly considered Dissenters. The three great denominations of dissent were Presbyterian, Independent (i.e. Congregationalist), and Baptist; later Unitarianism and Methodism joined them. ("Dissenters" and "Nonconformists" are nearly synonymous; a common modern phrase is "Free Church member"; "chapel" as opposed to "church" is colloquial.) Dissenters in England were allowed a modified religious liberty, but were denied many civil liberties until the mid-19th century. The "Protestant Dissenting Deputies" and William Smith, a Unitarian member of Parliament, were instrumental in obtaining these civil liberties.

Under Edward VI the newly established Church of England was made homogenous in its practices by an Act of Uniformity (1548). This was designed to drive out Catholics, but Puritans as well refused to follow some of these practices. Under Elizabeth those who attended other services, or who failed to attend the Church's services, were fined, imprisoned, or exiled; some were hanged as traitors. The English Universities would not grant degrees to students who would not subscribe to the "Thirty-Nine Articles" (the tenets of the Church). Persecution continued in the 17th century, and the dissenting denominations became formalised.

1662: Act of Uniformity, requiring all clergymen to subscribe to the whole of the new Prayer Book, and ejecting from the Church those who would not. This act forced many clergy into an adversary position, and divided English life into Church and Dissent.

1664: Conventicle Act, forbidding Nonconformist services for over 5 people.

1665: Five Mile Act, requiring ejected clergy to take an oath not to try to alter the government; he who did not take the oath could not teach, or come within 5 miles of any city or parish in which he had ever preached.

1673: Test and Corporation Acts, requiring every man holding a Crown or municipal office to take an oath of allegiance, and take communion in the Church of England. This act excluded Dissenters, Catholics, and Jews from the government or the armed services unless they did violence to their consciences.

1687: Declaration of Indulgence, suspending penalties for nonconformity.

1689: Toleration Act, abolishing penalties for nonconformity if the 39 Articles were subscribed to, and popery disavowed, thus relieving most Dissenters of religious (but not civil) disabilities. Did not cover Catholics or Unitarians.

1711: Occasional Conformity Act, penalizing and disabling officials who attended Nonconformist services. Repealed 1719.

In 1732 a general meeting of Protestant Dissenters was held in London, which appointed a Committee to consider when to apply to Parliament for repeal of the Corporation and Test Acts, and resolved that every congregation of the Three Denominations within 10 miles of London should send 2 Deputies to a general assembly to receive reports from the Committee. Thus began the PROTESTANT DISSenting DEPUTIES (London laymen) and the COMMITTEE OF 21 who carried out the PDD's political wishes. The ministers were organised separately as the "General Body of Ministers of the Three Denominations". Although the PDD officially represented only London congregations, in practice the Committee protected country Dissenters as well; there was no national body of Dissenters, although there were a number of strong local associations. The Chairman was selected by the Committee and was the prime liaison between Dissenters and Parliament; Smith was Chairman 1805-1832, and an MP 1784-1830 (with interruptions). The PDD has been referred to by many different names (see p 9); the Committee generally has no specific name. From time to time subcommittees have been set up: a Committee of Correspondence (to liaison with country Dissenters), a legal committee, a finance committee, a Parliamentary committee... The PDD is still in existence.

During the 18th century many Presbyterians evolved into Unitarians, whose guiding principle was a belief in free inquiry. Denying the Trinity was illegal and punishable, and many such congregations continued to use Presbyterianism as a cover. This typified a general split in each of the Three Denominations, between the Rational and the Orthodox. Another split was caused by the evangelical spirit. The Methodist revival began in the 1740s, and, although the Methodists did not consider themselves Nonconformists, similar revivals occurred in the Three Denominations: the Rational and the Evangelical movements were in general opposed to each other.

As the 18th century and the Industrial Revolution progressed, well-to-do magnates from London and the industrial areas formed a powerful group of rational or orthodox Dissenters still laboring under civil disabilities; for instance, they could not send their sons to English universities. In practice, society often turned a blind eye to Dissenters holding office or attending university; but they had to compromise their consciences and could be challenged at any time.

1739. Committee's attempt at passing a Repeal Act (of Test and Corporation) fails.

1753. Lord Hardwicke's Marriage Act, requiring all marriages to be celebrated in a consecrated building, not a Dissenter meeting-house.

1769. Sheriff's Cause (Lord Mansfield's definition of Dissent as a positive legal right). Hereafter the PDD assumed the duty of defending any Dissenter whose rights were being violated: most cases were from the country, some from the colonies.

1779. Act modifying the Toleration Act by allowing a substitution of belief in Scripture for the subscription to 39 Articles.

1770s. Reform Spirit; mobs for liberty.

1785. Smith brings in a marriage registry bill; defeated.

1787. Application Committee ("Committee to conduct the Application for Repeal to Parliament") founded; Smith a member. Beaufoy motions of 1787, 1789, Fox motion 1790. Fails.

1789. French Revolution. Dissenters, free-thinkers, radicals, and traitors now linked in the public mind; mob violence on both sides begins (Manchester, Leicester, Sheffield...)

1790. Application for Repeal finally defeated.

1791. Birmingham rioters burn Priestley's house.

1794. Priestley and others flee to America.

1795. Application Committee disbands.

1809-11. Sidmouth's bill to abridge the Toleration Act by registering ministers. Radical Dissenters found "The Protestant Society for the Protection of Religious Liberty", accuse Smith of cooperation with the government, defeat the Bill.

1812. New Toleration Act, repealing Five Mile and Conventicle Acts and loosening other limitations. (Brought in by Smith, backed by Perceval, Liverpool, Castlereagh.)

1812. Parish register bill; defeated.

1813. Trinity Act ("Mr William Smith's Act"), abolishing penalties against Anti-Trinitarians (i.e., Unitarians).

1819. Smith brings in a marriage bill; defeated. Similar bills defeated 1822, 1823.

1826. PDD helps fund foundation of non-sectarian University of London.

1827. Unitarian Marriage Bill carried by Smith in Commons, but defeated in Lords.

1828. Smith brings in a marriage bill; defeated.

1832. Smith retires as Chairman of the Deputies. Farewell address plea for unity among Dissenters.

1833. Bill to open the Universities to Dissenters carried in Commons, defeated in Lords.

1833. "United Committee to consider the Grievances under which Dissenters now labour, with a view to their Redress" formed from the Committee of 21, the General Body of Ministers, the Protestant Society and the London Presbytery.

1835 May 31. Smith dies.

1836. Unitarians withdraw from PDD.

1836. Marriage and Registration Act, repealing restrictions on Dissenters' marriages.

1871. Universities Tests Act, opening the Universities almost completely to Dissenters.

SMITH'S RELATIVES:
Davis, Smith's biographer, gives some information on them, but more investigation is needed. (The 1952 Landed Gentry has confused Smith's sons and grandsons.) Smith was an only child, but his father had five siblings, and he himself had 11 children. The line of his eldest son, Benjamin, assumed the name Leigh-Smith and is probably still extant; Benjamin's daughter, Barbara Leigh Smith Bodichon, moved in Pre-Raphaelite circles and founded Girton College. Daughter Frances (Fanny) married W. E. Nightingale (formerly Shore) and was the mother of Florence Nightingale, and of Parthenope, who married Sir Harry Verney, liberal MP. Daughter Joanna married John Carter, whose line assumed the name of Bonham-Carter; Victor Bonham-Carter is one of its representatives. Daughter Anne married Samuel Nicholson. Son Samuel married Mary Shore (sister of W. E. Nightingale); Samuel's son William Shore apparently assumed the name of Nightingale (Landed Gentry 1952), and Samuel's daughter Blanche married Arthur Hugh Clough. (MS Records contain rough notes taken from DNB, Davis, Landed Gentry 1863, 1952.)

7. [Notes taken from] Defoe's History of ye Union 3p & d (1 sheet)
B. Letters by Smith; and a letter from Thomas Allan to Spencer Perceval.

These are retained copies, or retained drafts, not the letters sent; B:4 is a copy. All except B:4 appear to be composed by Smith, but some appear not to be in his hand. It is difficult to distinguish Smith's hand; either he had several amanuenses with reasonably similar hands (perhaps members of his family), or he himself used different styles. Items which resemble B:6 are described as "In WS's hand". (8 items in 3 folders.)

1812

1. Feb 17. To Rt Hon Sp Perceval. [London]: Park St.
   On his interview with Perceval about Sidmouth's Bill.
   (Partially quoted in Davis, pp 174-175, and cited as William Smith to Perceval, 16 Feb 1812, Liverpool Papers, EM Add. MSS 38,247 f. 84.)
   In WS's hand; signed WS.
   5p & d (2 pieces, sewn)

2. Apr 22. To same. [London]: Park St.
   "I have had the honor to receive your communication of...the future Interpretations...on the Toleration Act..."
   In WS's hand; signed Wm Smith.
   6p & d (2 pieces, sewn)

3. Apr 29. To same. [London]: Park St.
   "Inclosed is the paper..." Dissenters want more than just the Toleration Act.
   In WS's hand; signed Wm Smith.
   6p & d (2 pieces, sewn)

   Allan, Thomas.
   Copy of letter to Spencer Perceval, discussing the New Toleration Act, and requesting him to direct it through Commons.
   In formal hand throughout including copy of signature; some amendments over erasures.
   Small hole in text.

1834

5. Jul 17. To the Editor of the Morning Herald.
   I agree with the recent letter taking a position against the regard shown by law for the security of property over that of person; but not with the letter's disapproval of a judge who did not comply with a jury's recommendation to mercy in a case of arson. Vengeance; attacks the innocent; endangers lives. Short harvests; recently against parochial officers administering poor-rates and the rate-payers.
   Draft.
   Signed S.W.
   3p & d (1 piece)

6. Nov 2. To Sir [Mr. Conder] [London]: Blandford Square
   My recent letter to The Patriot; your courteous reply; dislike for controversy over definitions. You fear discussing the subject in public may wake suspicions. You say the Body of Deputies was not judiciously composed; I answer that it was proper for its purposes: defending religious liberty, the right of private judgment, and the liberty of prophesying. You say there are not enough Orthodox Northern representatives; but the body is not appointed to guard Religious Opinion, but its opposite, Religious Liberty. Previous threat of Northern irruption. I quote words of mine against "Orthodoxy" printed over 20 years ago. (I was nurtured in a hotbed of Orthodoxy.)
   Draft.
   Signed Wm Smith.

B. Letters by Smith. [cont]

after 1833

7. ? ? Written on the blank 1 1/2 p. of the PRINTED Report of the Committee of 21 of the PDD for 27 Dec 1833. Draft; does not finish last paragraph.
   To "Mr E [or C]" [Perhaps Conder?]
   "I cannot but co-incide almost entirely in the Approbation...on the Diss' Letter to Ld Gr--" Howit[?]’s good sense at the Notts [Northern] meeting wasted. We have made no convert to the idea of Severance of Church and State. Upper party ready for battle. In a former letter I asked whether you are prepared for the warfare you are so ready to provoke? Yes, in a few commercial towns large groups have produced petitions. Burke found the loud disaffected actually very few, and ready for mischief not Reform. Now we don’t mean mischief, but the resistance to our attack would throw the realm into confusion. The London Committee went as far as is safe. There are two very different opinions among Dissenters as to how to proceed. Some contend "not merely for the removal of those restraints on Marriage the Improvement of the Registers & the Exempt from Ecclesiastical Rates...into which if our applications were limited according to the Advice of the Committee, We might probably & peaceably succeed".
   Unsigned; in WS’s hand. 2p (1 piece)

8. ? ? Written as above on another copy. Draft; end wanting.
   Unaddressed; perhaps to Conder.
   "On reviewing the letter which I took the liberty of addressing to You some Weeks ago I cannot but think that I produced sufficient arguments to dissuade from pressing on our requests with such haste..." My advice agrees with the Report from the Com: that we should not urge Severance without the acquiescence of a majority of the people. The strong Nottingham resolutions omit the evils of a rash attempt. How can you get both Commons and Lords (including Bishops) to pass such a measure without the Body of People? Some say we need only insist on our Rights (No minister does rightly without being pressured). If this gov was so pressed, could they carry it? No.
   Unsigned; in WS’s hand. 2p (1 piece)
C. Letters to Smith.

This section is arranged chronologically. Most of these letters bear a year-date; those that do not (items 25, 62, 70-71, 75, 105) have been placed at the first possible date. (This section contains 105 items in 32 folders.)

Most of these letters are addressed to Smith, at head, foot, or on the back. When Smith's name does not appear, the description includes "Recipient:" followed by the name of the recipient if not Smith (items 65-69, 74, 88, 97, 103 only), or by the wording of the salutation if no recipient is named. The description includes Smith as addressee only if there is an anomaly in the address.

Many of these letters and resolutions are written in the name of an organization by its chairman, secretary, or minister. In such cases, both the organization and the writer occupy the first two lines of the description; if the writer has added nothing personal to the organization's resolution his name follows that of the organization. "ch." stands for chairman, and "sec." for secretary.

If the writer's name includes dates of birth and death, he has been identified with fair certainty by the use of the DNB, Boase, Cokayne, or the pNUC. All letters are signed unless noted otherwise; the signature is quoted if it differs from the name-as-identified. Names of most organizations have not been found, but normalized from what appears in the letters themselves. "PDD" stands for "Protestant Dissenting Deputies", the London-based national organization which used a wide variety of names; "Protestant Dissenters ([locality])" has been used for the similar local organizations.

Physical description: "3p" means "contains 3 pages of text"; "& a" means that the back of the letter is addressed as well; "& d" means that WS or another has docketed (jotted a note of the contents on the back of) the letter; "& a/d" means that the back contains both address and docketing.

Place: primarily English counties and London. Wales: items 13, 14, 92, 96; Scotland: items 28-30, 38, 45-47, 95; Ireland: items 80, 98; Newfoundland: items 54-55; Switzerland: items 64-69.

Nothing from the New Forest or Lymington Fair substantiates the reports in the London papers. North should have been told it was the duty of the Bishops to back the Application for Repeal. Test Act hypocrisy: candidates from here take the Test secretly in London. Family congratulations.

Signed Jno Walker, or Welmer, or Walmer; docketed "Mr Walker, Newport"

   I regret that you did not receive timely thanks from our District Meeting at Leicester representing 9 Counties (the chairman missed the District Committee Meeting at Derby 4 Feb), so I am thanking you personally. Account of the meeting. Mr Shore Jr. Shocking that the King thanked the Chamber Lords who went into the country to stir up Jacobitism. Dissenters are "the last Friends to the Constitution". Fox's friends; the approaching debate will fail. We will succeed in due course if we approve the Union plan, which wants only the recommendation of the London Committee. Politics here. I send a pamphlet "printed this day but not yet published".

1790 [cont]

   Such a large defeat is surprising. Must not defend the Established Church with violence, but with argument. A Test (if any) should be general and civil, not religious. Logical end of Tests the disqualification of all minorities. The Dissenters should persevere; but take care not to make it a party issue between the Church and the Dissenters. Best to Wilberforce.

Your previous kindness. I enclose my pamphlet on the unlawfulness of war. In it I have refrained from theology and have used a different publisher (although obliged to Mr Hunter). In secrecy I tell you that I have written a letter to the King resigning my commission on this principle. Personal news. Mr Belsham. Can you aid a Bill for Railway running North from Stockton to Coalpits benefiting descendants of my old patron Gen. Hale?

Signed Thos Thrush. [Navy List shows him a Lt 1797, Capt 1802.]

Probably refers to the proposed Tees and Weardale Railway (a rival to the Stockton and Darlington pioneer) which was to run S of Durham by way of Coxhoe and Quarrington collieries the lease of which was owned by three unmarried daughters of Gen. Hale. The Bill was thrown out by Commons on 10 May 1825; S & D was opened in Sept 1825; T & W was reincarnated as the Clarence Ry. (See W.W. Tomlinson, North Eastern Railway.) "Gen. Hale" is probably John Hale (4th son of Sir Bernard) of Guisborough, Yorks, d. 1806, who had 21 children: 3 spinsters d. in the 1850s (see Landed Gentry).

D. Correspondence concerning Seven Rakes Mine in Derbyshire, 1824-1825 & n.d.

William Smith and T.V. [?] Cooke of Staines apparently had a quarter interest in a partnership in Seven Rakes Mine, Derbyshire; other members were Milnes and Bracebridge. The partnership neglected its rights, and in 1810 and 1816 the local lead-mining court gave local men (Adam Knowles, John and Michael Carding) the right to work parts of the abandoned mine. This correspondence is from 1824-5: WS is trying unsuccessfully to recover ground or profits. He is working through John Alsop Jr (a local man, related to the court officials), Richard Hurt (agent of Cooke & Co.), John Taylor of London, and William Edward Shore Nightingale (WS's son-in-law, of Lea Hurst, Derbyshire).

Area: The mine is on the Derwent River: Alsop writes from Lea Bridge, about 9 miles north of Derby on the Derwent, and Lea Hurst (later the home of Florence Nightingale) is close by. (Nightingale also mentions Smith's land at Ewhurst: this may be Ewhurst, Hampshire, near Kingsclere.)

Ornament: Cross-section of mine in D:7.

Document: D:3 contains copies of entries for 1810 and 1816 from the book kept by the Barmaster for the Liberty of Matlock.

4. Taylor, John.
   1824 Nov 8.
   To William Smith, Upper Seymour Street, [London]
   Advantage was taken of the inattention of the old company, but a suit now not worth it: you have little more than a quarter share and could not get a majority; better to regain your part by treaty with the possessors. Employ Mr Alsop for the negotiations. Only hope to run mine efficiently is if the new neighboring company drains the water.

    To William Smith, London.
    The new Welch Co have been draining the Side Mine across the river; if they succeed it will drain the Seven Rakes, but the Derwent floods have destroyed the works & they will probably not persevere.

   To T.V. Cooke, Sunning Hill, Berks.
   [Yorkshire]: Wakefield: Thorne's House
   While lately with N at Lea I enquired about the mine; the enclosed letter from Mr A sums up the business. I have written Hurt that the Customs of the Mining Country are vicious if they mean a principal's property can be disposed of without informing him, and as such would not stand in a court of law. Estimated revenues to present possessors. Reward to us not worth much effort.

UNDATED

9. Alspop, John. To William Smith, Lea Hurst. Saturday morning [watermark 1823] [Derbyshire:] Lea Bridge

"Mr Richard Hurt says no correspondence took place with Messrs Cook & Co previous to the relinquishment...Mr Milnes acting for Mr Bracebridge & others...determined upon its abandonment...

pp 3-4 mutilated without loss of text. 1p & a (1 piece)

"Your last account of Ewhurst says 'only 600 [?] acres' of freehold land--The printed particulars says 'nearly 1200'..." We are setting out to visit your estate via Leicestershire and Northamptonshire, where I'll go hunting since "Frances is of course not anxious to make long days march".

Mr Swettenham says the Barmaster gave title to 3 poor men, all according to law; no possibility of recovery. You may use my name to Swettenham.

INITIALED: W.S.N. (or W.E.N.).

DATING: Reads as if it precedes D:2. Frances' delicacy may be due to pregnancy, but DNB (sub Florence Nightingale) records only two births. Florence (the second child) was born in Italy in May 1820.

EWHURST: There are Ewhursts in Surrey and Sussex, and a small village SE of Kingsclere, Hampshire. The last is 25 miles from Embly park, Hampshire, which was bought by Nightingale in 1826; thereafter the Nightingales spent summers in Derbyshire and winters in Hampshire. Ewhurst, Hampshire, contains 477 acres; Ewhurst Manor was owned by Robert Mackreth (see DNB) who died in 1819; the manor was then sold to Mr Symonds, and then to Sir Peter Pole, who sold it to Wellington in 1837. It is just possible that WS was considering its purchase, either before Symonds' purchase or before Pole's purchase; but WS was not affluent after 1819.

William Edward (1794-1874) assumed the name of Nightingale in 1815, and inherited Lea Hall (or Lea Hurst), Derbyshire. He married WS's 4th daughter, Frances (Fanny) SMITH (b. 1788) in 1818.

Mary SHORE married WS's 3rd son, Samuel SMITH (1794-1880, "of Coombe Hurst and Lea Hurst"). She inherited Embly Park in 1874. Her son, William Shore Smith (1829-1894) assumed the name of Nightingale in 1893. (VCH: Hampshire 4: p. 536; Alum Oxon.)

p. 1 struck out; p. 2 annotated "Mine"; a third of pp 3-4 cut away. 3p & a (1 piece)

11. Smith, William. To Dr Sir. [n.p.]

"I send You the inclosed -- Do You...recollect what Documents Bradley gave us... respecting the Mine?..."...Papers relating to the Old Stratf' Partnership... Dennett was then...Attorney...
